How should we start advocacy and outreach?

the Universal Declaration on Archives (UDA)

UDA

- appropriate national archival policies and laws are adopted and enforced;
- the management of archives is valued and carried out competently by all bodies, private or public, which create and use archives in the course of conducting their business;
- adequate resources are allocated to support the proper management of archives, including the employment of trained professionals;

UDA

- archives are managed and preserved in ways that ensure their authenticity, reliability, integrity and usability;
- archives are made accessible to everyone, while respecting the pertinent laws and the rights of individuals, creators, owners and users;
- archives are used to contribute to the promotion of responsible citizenship

Archival records ensure the protection of citizens' rights, the accountability of organizations and governments, and the accessibility of historical information so the archival profession must take an active role in advocating for the public policies and resources necessary to ensure that these records are preserved and made accessible.
